

Porsche Malaysia brings heritage, innovation and motorsport together at Luftwasser 2026

08/09/2026 From air-cooled icons to the latest in Porsche E-Performance and motorsport, Luftwasser 2026 brought generations of Porsche cars and enthusiasts together in a community celebration of shared passion for the sports car.

Porsche Malaysia, represented by Sime Darby Auto Performance (Auto Performance), joined owners and enthusiasts at Luftwasser 2026: Icona Heritage for a day of passion, heritage and innovation.

Held at LYL International Karting Circuit, the independently organised event also brought together hundreds of Porsche sports cars from different eras, alongside a programme centred on community, motorsport and the continuing development of the brand.

The anticipated gathering welcomed Porsche owners, enthusiasts and visitors to experience a showcase spanning different generations of Porsche vehicles – from air-cooled and water-cooled classics, GT cars, special edition models, race-bred machines and the latest generation of performance models – all in one place.

Porsche sports cars and motorsport take centre stage at LW26

Porsche Malaysia introduced a dedicated hospitality paddock at Luftwasser 2026, offering guests views across the vehicle display and karting circuit.

As Porsche celebrates 75 years of motorsport in 2026, LuftWasser 2026 provided the ideal platform to demonstrate how lessons learned on the racetrack continue to influence every Porsche road car today.

A curated display of 911 GT3 Cup cars showcased successive generations of racing machinery that have competed under Porsche Malaysia's banner, from the 997-generation 911 GT3 Cup that raced in the 2012 season, through its 991-generation successor, to the current 992.2-generation Porsche 911 Cup campaigned by Naquib Azlan and Team Porsche Malaysia in the 2026 Porsche Carrera Cup Asia season.

Presented in their original racing liveries, the cars illustrated the evolution of Porsche Malaysia's customer motorsport programme and its ongoing commitment to young driver talent development and racing in the region.

The Porsche among SUVs: Cayenne Electric leads a new era

Porsche Malaysia also presented the new Cayenne Electric at Luftwasser alongside its predecessors, offering visitors a unique perspective on the evolution of the Cayenne over more than two decades.

Together, the display demonstrated how Porsche has continuously developed the Cayenne while remaining true to the qualities that have defined it from the beginning: everyday usability, long-distance comfort and unmistakable sports car performance

The Cayenne Electric extends this concept into electromobility, and the result is a family-oriented SUV that combines extraordinary performance with long-distance usability.

With up to 1,156 PS, a WLTP range of up to 669 kilometres and DC charging at up to 400 kW, the Cayenne Electric carries the title of the most powerful production Porsche ever built.

Under optimal conditions, the high-voltage battery can be charged from 10 to 80 per cent in less than 16 minutes. Its 800-volt architecture and recuperation capacity of up to 600 kW further support both performance and everyday usability.

The Cayenne Electric complements the existing combustion-engined and plug-in hybrid Cayenne models, giving customers in Malaysia a choice across three powertrain types.

The Cayenne Electric is available to order in Malaysia, with prices starting from RM 699,000. For further information, customers may contact their nearest Porsche Centre.

Easy to drive, challenging to master: the new 911 Challenge

Also featured at Luftwasser 2026 was the new Porsche 911 Challenge, giving visitors an early look at Porsche's latest customer motorsport model ahead of its official launch.

Designed as an accessible entry point into Porsche customer racing, the 911 Challenge combines key elements of the current road-going 911 GT3 with purpose-developed motorsport components.

At its heart is a naturally aspirated 4.0-litre six-cylinder boxer engine producing 379 kW (515 PS), paired with a seven-speed dual-clutch PDK transmission derived from the production 911 GT3.

A community that keeps the story moving

Luftwasser 2026 brought together different generations of Porsche owners and enthusiasts, creating opportunities to share experiences, discover new models and celebrate a common appreciation for the sports car.

From long-standing owners to those encountering the brand for the first time, visitors experienced Porsche through the cars, stories and people that form its community.

For Porsche Malaysia, events such as Luftwasser are also an opportunity to engage directly with the community that supports the marque.

Beyond showcasing new products and motorsport activities, they provide a platform to strengthen relationships with owners and enthusiasts, exchange perspectives and remain connected to the people who continue to shape Porsche culture in the country and beyond.

As the displays throughout the event demonstrated, Porsche continues to evolve.

What remains constant is the enthusiasm of the community that surrounds it, and the shared passion that continues to bring people together around the sports car.
